Mark Twain Elementary principal Ruthlee Caloiaro reacts to receiving a donation of $4,000 from Paul Stowell of City National Bank during a reading assembly on Monday afternoon. The money will be used to purchase reading materials for students. Also during the assembly Suzanne Stock with Barnes & Noble announced the company will be donating and delivering 850 books to the school this week from their Holiday Book Drive.

Curry Street pre-construction meeting Thursday

Nevada Appeal staff report

Carson Proud, Q&D Construction and Carson City Public Works will host a meeting on the upcoming Curry Street construction project at 6 p.m. Thursday, March 22 in the Ormsby Room at the Carson City Sheriff's Office.

The meeting will cover information about the construction process and will also cover how to stay informed and receive updates throughout the construction process. The meeting will also give the public a chance to air concerns and ask questions about the project.

Catmandu purchasing its facility

Catmandu has announced its purchase of its facility at 1829 1 Street in Carson City. After four years of the cage-free shelter, Catmandu has purchased its facility.

Founder Linda B. Chanan hopes to eventually expand the services offered at Catmandu to include a kitten nursery and more options for feral cats.

Inspired by the plight of a homeless cat named "Carson," B. Chanan opened Catmandu to provide shelter for cats and kittens living on the streets. Catmandu in Carson enjoyed five years together until his passing on March 1. Carson's legacy lives on at Catmandu.

Catmandu provides a home-like atmosphere where cats can roam and mingle with one another and their caregivers. This low-stress environment allows cats to recover from the trauma of being abandoned and become loving, adoptable kitties. A separate building caters to kittens under 4 months old.

Catmandu helps cats from all areas of Nevada as long as space is available. We're often the
