School district launches COVID-19 testing program for employees

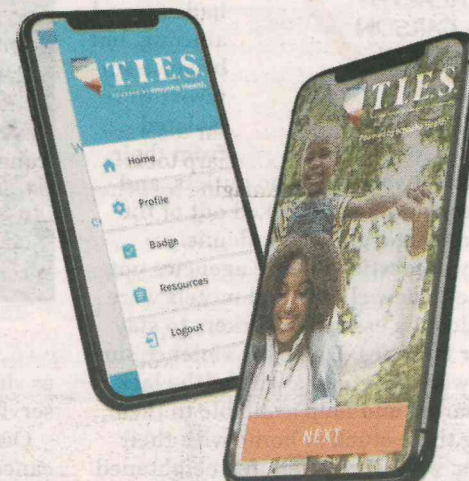

Carson City School District

The Carson City School District will offer free COVID-19 testing for all school employees in two drive-through events, according to a news release.

Information about the dates, times and location already have been provided to employees from school administrators. After the events, school employees who become symptomatic at work can be tested by one of the school nurses.

The testing program, referred to as the Task Force Initiative for Educator's Safety and Screening (TIES), promotes the health and safety of staff, students, families and communities by preventing the introduction and spread of COVID-19 in Nevada's schools.

The Nevada Department of Education, in partnership with THT Health, formerly known as Teachers Health Trust, as well as district leaders, teacher representatives and health professionals, helped develop the testing program for school staff across the State. The TIES testing program was approved by the state and is funded by the federal
