Reps. Dina Titus and Mark Amodei are running for re-election.

This cycle, all of Nevada's constitutional offices — governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, attorney general, controller and treasurer — are up. And at least four of the six will have new occupants after the November elections.

Those departing are Gov. Brian Sandoval who's termed out, Attorney General Adam Laxalt, who's running for governor, Treasurer Dan Schwartz, who's running for governor, and Lt. Gov. Mark Hutchinson, who isn't seeking re-election.

Controller Ron Knecht and Secretary of State Barbara Cegavske are seeking a second term but face announced challengers.

ates can begin of-filing Monday. The eriod runs through 16.

nds obtained from son City Court-how Houle has rested at least ating back to 2004 ida.

ieve in honesty; not honest then I pect the people to that," Houle said. made mistakes n past that now... s I'm one of the and people mess t because some- been arrested doesn't mean they can't make a difference in the community."

Houle was arrested in 2004 for felony assault with a deadly weapon after allegedly attempting to run over his military recruiter with his vehicle. Houle denies the allegation, stating the incident was a misunderstanding and the victim, Sgt. Shawn Chaufy, had attempted to get into his vehicle via the sunroof and Houle got scared and drove away.
